VETERANS' REUNION.

e G. A R. Denounce Polygamy by Resolution

Vote Against the Principle of Pensions for Service.

rman Entertains His Comrades with a Bit of History.

The National Encampment

EDANCISCO, August 6 At the third session of the national encampment to-day committee on resolutions submitted a report denouncing polygamy, that congress be asked to pass such laws as will eradicate the evil from the country The feature of the afternoon session was the discussion over the report on the pension bill The department of Connecticut offered a resolution favoring the bill by congress of the Lovering order which provides a pension of $8 per month to every surviving soldier and sailor of the war whether disabled or not The committee of resolutions, to whom the matter was referred reported adversely. Department Indiana submitted a minority report favoring the measure Vote was first taken on the latter and defeated by 327 to 86 Several efforts were made during the day to take into consideration the next encampment place, but without avail A session will be held this evening when it is hoped both the question of the encampment and the election of officers will be accomplished

During the proceedings General Sherman delivered an address. He spoke of the origin of the order, of the part members had taken in the civil war and then said Men who have been engaged in a single battle or a single campaign are apt to dwell on it as the only battle ever fought, and many of us are apt to assume that our war was the only conflict of note worthy of record. Others have preceded us, others will succeed it. We now, with a perspective of only 21 years, fully realize that the civil war in America was but a single step in the progress of the world to a newer and higher civilization The revolutionary war demonstrated that the thirteen colonies could defy Europe on the coast of America maintained manhood and had a natural right to assume all its functions, among them independence. The war of 1812 demonstrated that a new nation was capable of defending itself not only within its domains but on the high seas and everywhere. Then the Mexican war of 1846 47 demonstrated that our political institutions must reach from ocean to ocean, from the lakes to the gulf, with room for development; and finally the late war demonstrated that the United States of America could defend the government against the greatest of all enemies ourselves. Gen Sherman gave an interesting account of the events which led to the Mexican war and of the subsequent history of that war, and of the acquisition of California by the United States and the parts played by General Fremont, Commodore Sloat and others Speaking of his own share in the operations he told how the battery to which he was attached was sent around the 'Horn" leaving New York July 13th and arriving at Monterey on the 29th January, 1847 He compared the condition of California at that time with its present prosperity, and then reverting to the results of the civil war closed as follows You my beloved comrades, veterans of the war of 1861 65 have abundant reason to renew your faith in the majesty and security of a new union bound together in harmony by rivers and mountains and by bands of steel which are controlling its own property and affairs, with a strong government over it. In your conventions and feasts you will spare some words of cheer to your surviving comrades of the Mexican war who did so much to enlarge the national domain and make possible the glorious work you after him so thoroughly accomplished We do not expect to tarry long to enjoy the fruits of our labor, but until generations of intelligent men and beautiful women will be here to protect, defend and adorn these institutions, and in the meantime we have a right to be proud and content that in our day and generation we have duly contributed to build up and strengthen the fabric of the government fashioned by our fathers, sanctified by the greatness of its creation, made doubly precious by the glorious virtues of our martyred Lincoln, and crowned by the achievements of our comrade Grant.

DETROIT, August 6—Dr O'Reilly this morning cabled to the treasurers of the Irish parliamentary fund $60 000 to sustain the Parnellites The following dispatch was sent to Parnell 'Have this day transmitted to trustees sixty thousand dollars The league in America relaxes no effort, knows no dismay O'REILLY, Treasurer"

The Anarchist Trial

CHICAGO August 6—In the anarchist trial to-day the defense introduced a witness in an endeavor to show that Fischer and Schwab, two of the defendants were not present at the Haymarket when the bomb was thrown

In the afternoon Johan Gruenburg testified that in the presence of Fischer and Schwab at the Arbeiter Zeitung office he was directed by Spies to take back to the printers a circular calling the Haymarket meeting and have others printed which omitted the words 'Working men, arm yourselves and come in force." Witness said the first circulars had been distributed by orders of the defendants.

Edward H Castle and H S Howe testified that they knew the reputation of Harry Gilmer for truth and veracity to be bad

Martin Fechter swore he was with Neebe in a saloon on the evening of May 3d and that the latter distributed none of the Haymarket circulars

Mrs. Lizzie May Holmes, late assistant editor and contributor to the Alarm, testified that she was with Mrs. Parsons at the Haymarket meeting till the close of Parsons' speech, when she (Mrs Parsons) went to a saloon near Zepf's hall Shortly afterwards Parsons and Fischer came in Witness swore that they did not go out till after the bomb exploded She became somewhat confused when questioned as to the locations occupied by herself, Mrs Parsons, Mr Parsons and Fischer and contradicted herself as to minor details, Samuel Fielden, defendant, was then called to the stand. He corrected the testimony of other witnesses for the defense as to the meeting held at the Arbeiter Zeitung office early in the evening of May 4 From there he accompanied Parsons to the Haymarket, arriving at the conclusion of Spies' speech Parsons then spoke. Witness was introduced by Spies and spoke about twenty minutes. Witness spoke fluently in a slightly tremulous tone of voice and related subsequent events about as follow "As I was concluding my remarks I noticed the police coming towards me When they were quite close Captain Ward, in an angry tone of voice, said, 'I command you in the name of the state of Illinois to disperse' I then stepped down from the wagon and said to the captain in a conciliatory tone of voice Why, captain, this is a peaceable meeting' He had an angry retort and I started for the sidewalk As I walked along I saw a flash over my shoulder and heard the explosion of the bomb Then I heard the police pouring shots into the crowd from revolvers and many groans of agony About this time I felt a sharp pain in the knee but did not know I was shot till I reached Desplaines street and mounted a Van Buren street car I boarded a car going toward Fifth avenue, intending to visit the Arbeiter office and see if any others had arrived and learn if they had been wounded There was no light in the building so I got my wound dressed and went home.

The remainder of Fielden's testimony related to such stereotyped items of defense as 'the police did all the firing,' 'there was no intention to use dynamite nor any kind of force at the Haymarket'"

The defense brought into considerable prominence the fact that Fielden was an industrious and prosperous workingman, who never owned a revolver in his life and did not use one at the Haymarket. His direct examination will be continued to-morrow morning

GENERAL NEWS.

Matthew Arnold's View of American Feeling on Home Rule.

Fishermen Find the Body of Ida Chatfield.

Convincing Evidence Produced Against Squires.

Matthew Arnold and Americans

LONDON August 6 —Matthew Arnold, who is in America publishes a letter in the London Times, in which he says "I suppose there is no country in the world where Gladstone's favor is stronger than in the United States, yet even here if you weigh instead of count opinions the balance opposes his Irish policy. The main motive Americans have for sympathy with Gladstone is the temptation to please the Irish The weight of opinion is not that of the general public who yield to this temptation, but that of men who resist and look deep Of these serious people the opinion is against Gladstone Nevertheless, Americans, one and all, sincerely believe that the Irish ought to have control of their own local affairs. Salisbury must recognize this If he merely tries to keep order and let things drift, he will lose a great opportunity. If he produces a good scheme of local government he will probably secure Gladstone's support for it.

Affairs at Aspen

DENVER, August 6 An Aspen special to the News says The body of Miss Ida Chatfield who mysteriously disappeared from her home in Aspen June 4 and was generally supposed to have been abducted or foully dealt with, was found by two fishermen in the Roaring Fork this afternoon lodged between a couple of rocks in the middle of the stream The body was badly decomposed, the hair gone from the head and the flesh from one arm It is now supposed she was abducted, and when the parties having her found they could not keep the matter secret, murdered her and hid the body in the stream The remains were taken to Aspen, where an inquest will be held to-morrow

The Aspen Evening Press was seized today by the sheriff on a writ of attachment sued out by H B Gillespie for a claim of $4,010 and the material stored in a building in the rear of the Press office. The press franchise, held by the paper, has been transferred to S W Keene, and it is not yet known whether the paper will be continued under a new management or not.

The Case Against Squire

NEW YORK, August 6 A rumor circulated to-day to the effect that Rollin M Squire and Maurice B Flynn were liable to be arrested at any moment on criminal charges made to the district attorney. It is said that already bench warrants signed by Judge Cowing were in the hands of detectives. Judge Cowing refused to speak about the reports, saying it was something he was not at liberty either to affirm or deny

Examination by Mayor Grace into the charges made against Commissioner Squire was continued to-day A witness named Gilbert M Speir, jr, said he met Hubert O Thompson July 19 Thompson called at witness' office and held a conversation with him From there he went to the office of Mayor Grace in Hanover square. 'Before he went," said witness, 'Thompson showed me a letter or paper" (Letter of December 26 shown and identified)

'Did he tell you where he got the letter?'

Witness—"He told me he had taken it from a box in the Safe Deposit company"

'After he had show this letter to you and left your office did he come back?'

'After he had shown me the letter he asked me to read it. I did so and then went to Mayor Grace's office with him We there met Mayor Grace and Chamberlain Ivans I remained in the outer office while the others retired to the inner office. When Thompson came out I asked if he had given the letter up and he said that he had He then got in to his coupe and drove away"

'Do you know Maurice B Flynn?'

"I do. After Thompson died I had a conversation with Mr Flynn It was Tuesday, or perhaps on Monday I met him on Twenty fourth street accidentally He told me that there was a certain paper that belonged to himself that Thompson had in his safe, and he would like to get it. I told him that I didn't think it was there or in the safe."

"To what did he refer?'

'I inferred that he referred to that letter"

The signature of Squire was identified by August Lyon and D Louber Smith The letter December 26, 1884 to Maurice B Flynn from Squire was then submitted The letter is one in which Squire agrees to allow Flynn to make appointments in the department of public works

There was no news of importance, but in early dealings there was active trading in Union Pacific, which rose one per cent, chiefly due to adjournment of congress, which relieves all apprehension of adverse legislation Although the buying to-day was general the most pronounced movement was in specialties St Louis and San Francisco stocks were prominent for advances made. Louisville and Chattanooga, and Cleveland Columbus, Cincinnati and Indianapolis were also noticeable for strength Opening prices were almost invariably higher, Western Union being the only noticeable exception with a decline of ⅛ per cent. To Subdue Burmah

In consequence of this the British government in India has decided to entrust supreme command in Burmah to Maj General Sir Herbert MacPherson, commander in chief in Madras. Five thousand troops will be sent into the country as soon as the cold season commences, to scour it and drive out and subdue the insurgents, and one thousand additional police will be sent to India to maintain order

Zozo, the Magic Queen

The Montreal Herald says of this great spectacular drama "Zozo," the Magic Queen played for the first time at the opera house last night, is the grandest spectacle ever presented to a Canadian audience In fact, a well known alderman at the theatre last night says he never saw anything to equal it outside of the large theaters of London The scenery is gorgeous and bars description The ladies are all young and pretty, not the stereotyped style usually found upon the stage. This extravaganza has every essential element of success With its costly scenic effects and gorgeous pageantry, there is an abundance of beautiful scenery, sparkling and costly costumes, good acting and popular music The transformation scenes under the beautiful colored lights from the calcium carried the house by storm They even surpassed the fondest imagination of any one in the auditorium. There is nothing in the drama to offend the most fastidious, being free from coarseness or vulgarity, in fact, it was a performance which for good taste and refinement has never been excelled here.

Sir Andrew Clarke, Mr Gladstone's physician, is of the opinion that Gladstone's physique is perfectly sound, and that he has years of good work in him yet.

Sing Sing prison made a net profit of $5000 in July. It is not surprising considering that it contains such financiers as Ford Ward, the banker Fish and ex Alderman Jachne of New York.

Rose Elizabeth Cleveland has a prospect of a lively time editing the Literary Life of Chicago. Gail Hamilton has been engaged as assistant editor of the Current. When the cousin of the defeated candidate gets after the sister of the successful one it will be interesting.

Prince Lichtenstein, a petty German ruler, recently bought a Krupp gun but found that he could not discharge it without sending the missile into some other prince's domain. He therefore had it turned into a monument and set up in the public square of his capital.

The vote at San Francisco yesterday should settle the question of service pensions for some time. Only one out of five was in favor of such a measure. Congressmen trying to catch the soldier vote should take the hint.

The prohibitionists have not yielded in their hostility to the republican party if recent action in Massachusetts may be taken as an indication of the general policy. At a meeting of the prohibitory state committee resolutions were adopted sneering at the recent anti saloon convention and denouncing the republicans. A proposal to thoroughly organize for a vigorous campaign met with general favor. The leaders do not care so much for prohibition as to control an independent party which they can use for their own benefit.

England will have to reconquer Burmah and is setting about its task by sending in some thousands of fresh troops. China is charged with having a hand in the new difficulties, which is very likely. The dacoits in Burmah are supported by black flags. The Chinese government claim that it is difficult to control their subjects because of the unsettled condition of the question of the decennial tribute which has been paid by the Burmese. This may be regarded as a hint that continuance of the tribute will be the easiest way out of it for England. The force of arms will be tried first, however.

The gentiles of Salt Lake entertained the Grand Army delegates as they passed through their city on the way to the national encampment. Camp fires and speech making and banquets followed each other for a week, and the veterans were given an opportunity to study the Mormon evil at close range. That what they saw and heard impressed them appears from the action taken by the encampment yesterday. Resolutions were passed denouncing polygamy and calling on congress to eradicate the evil. Such an influence pressing on congress next winter cannot fail to accomplish good results.

The market quotation of silver made another drop yesterday. The effect of the rapid decline has been felt in all western mining districts many of which are filled with alarm at the prospect. The recent depreciation represents the profits of many companies, and in some cases mines are run at a loss in hope of an early reaction. A Montana paper reveals the condition of the industry in that section in the following paragraph. "The Glendale works, employing 1000 men, will shut down on the 15th. The Alice, Moulton, Lexington and Wickes works, and many other great enterprises which for years have paid heavy dividends, and employ thousands of men, cannot run if the present depression in the silver market continues. A general paralysis of business will result unless a change speedily occurs. Butte is a substantial city of 22 000 people entirely dependent on mining, 5000 miners being employed. The copper smelters will continue in operation, but with decreased profits. The silver mills of Montana represent an investment of $20 000 000, and the mining machinery as much more. The silver product of the territory the current year, estimated at $12,000,000 will be suddenly cut short and fully 12 000 miners thrown out of employment."

Mr Baker, representative of the Thirtieth New York district, made the democrats of the house very uncomfortable last Monday by a resolution, which was read despite the efforts to choke it off. It was finally returned to its author as disrespectful. Mr Reed in closing the debate said: "It seems to me there is good ground for the indignation expressed on the democratic side. For while this matter in its final results assumed the form of a just it still contained so many truths that the indignation of the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr Randall) certainly could not have been feigned." This resolution, which was only alluded to in our telegraphic report, is summarized as follows by a Washington correspondent:

The resolutions were prefaced by a long preamble setting forth that congress has been in session only a little more than eight months with a democratic majority of only forty in the house, that during the entire session the two wings of the democratic party have never ceased to clip one another's throats, that by their bad faith and unconstitutional efforts all part of the people of Dakota, numbering over a half million only to gain admission into the union of states, have been defeated, that bills introduced by misguided democratic representatives providing enabling acts for the admission of the territories of Washington and Montana respectively into the union as states have been buried, that an almost successful effort has been made to create a new territory with the usual outfit of officers to be filled from the ranks of the only truly harmonious party that has ruled the destiny of the nation since Washington declined a third term a territory where, owing to ill-considered and unwise treaty covenants and stipulations during the past fifty years, no less than five tribes of Indians numbering more than 65,000 have assumed to establish so-called civilized governments alleged to be republican in form accompanied by churches, Catholic and Protestant, schools, a college and some charitable institutions, thereby rendering the soil and climate unsuitable for the growth and existence of democratic institutions as proposed to be administered by Oklahoma boomers, that there has been an earnest though unsuccessful effort to reform the tariff and establish free trade, an effort which failed only by reason of unlawful friction between the two wings before mentioned that the democratic party further congratulates the country upon the successfully inaugurated policy of the democratic majority in congress in compelling, though against the protest of the president and the financial officers of the government, the payment of reserved surplus in the treasury upon the public debt, in disregard of the pledged public faith to maintain the credit and honor of the government, that the democratic majority in congress further congratulates the country upon the failure of the national bankruptcy bills, the failure to pass the Mexican veterans' service pension bill, the defeat through executive veto of the bill for the relief of the Des Moines river settlers, the successful defeat through executive disapproval of private pension bills for so called veterans of the late war and allowed widows of such and for pretended dependant parents, aggregating in number over ninety and enough to save to the treasury the salary of the president each year and defray the necessary annual expenses of repairs to the White house and place therein the necessary cooking utensils, furniture and flowers in accordance with Jeffersonian simplicity, the almost successful effort by the democratic majority to revive the popular income tax law the strict enforcement and maintenance of civil service rules and regulations in the administration of the affairs of the government, that the democratic representatives point with just pride to the fact that since the inauguration of the present democratic administration only a little more than 20 000 postmasters of both sexes and all grades including disabled war veterans, have been removed or replaced by inoffensive partisans while in the various departments there are yet a few places around which sacred willing patriots in respectful silence waiting, the promptness with which the ruling majority have brought forward the several general appropriation bills forcing through congress only two deficiency bills (not counting the general deficiency bill), providing in the aggregate for the trifle of only about $15 000 000, only thrice extending the appropriation of last year, that the thanks of the country are due to the democratic party for the successful passage of the annual appropriation bills, that the democratic house be advised to preserve the banners under which victory was achieved in 1884 willy nilly in spring mo tocs and legends of "Economy and Reform" as will be considered vacant enough Morgan until after the election especially that relating to the civil service reform which though attenuated and emasculated is relied upon to produce Fabian strains fit to be wafted over the mugwumpian waters of politics, that the two wings of the democracy with their greenback and prohibition allies will ever flap loving and harmoniously together that democratic civil service professions are in accordance with true Jeffersonian simplicity of the Joe Jefferson Rip Van Winkle kind—"This time don't count", that the democratic party still believes in prohibition—in republican districts, that "We must turn the rascals out," and that "Great is the democratic party!"

Benton's Hair Grower.

All who are BALD, all who are becoming BALD, all who do not want to be BALD, all who are troubled with DANDRUFF, or ITCHING of the scalp should use Benton's Hair Grower. EIGHTY PER CENT of those using it have grown hair. It never fails to stop the hair from falling. Through sickness and fevers the hair sometimes falls off in a short time and although the person may have remained bald for years, if you use Benton's Hair Grower according to directions you are sure of a growth of hair. In hundreds of cases we have produced a good growth of Hair on those who have been bald and glazed for years, we have fully substantiated the following facts:

Unlike other preparations it contains no sugar of lead, or vegetable or mineral poisons.
We grow Hair in 80 cases out of 100, no matter how long bald.
It is a specific for falling hair, dandruff, and itching of the scalp.
The Hair Grower is a hair food and its composition is almost exactly like the oil which supplies the hair with its vitality.

RELIGIOUS WORLD

Notes and Comments by Rev. J B Gregg

On the ground that courtesy is one of the channels through which religion flows the insertion in the religious column of the following gentle hint to some of our friends who smoke, may be justified "A certain sort of tobacco blindness is on the increase The Lowell Citizen says that the victim is so affected that he can't see that he is puffing smoke right into the face of the person next him

Our readers will be interested in Dr Lyman Abbott's description of his visit to the grave of "H H" and his estimate of her personality and work

The walls of the South Cheyenne canon are perpendicular, or nearly so At the bottom of this wild cleft in the mountain side there is just room enough for a mountain stream and a narrow footpath The visitor leaves his carriage at the mouth of the canon and follows up the footpath, every turn in the narrow and almost subterranean winding way disclosing a new grandeur, and evoking a new exclamation or compelling a more eloquent and significant silence Half a mile brings him to a rude gateway, where an otherwise idle boy comes out from a temporary booth to demand a quarter. It is a pity to allow this toll to be levied on God's roadway, and a double pity since it is the natural pathway of those who desire to do honor to the memory of "H H" If I were a Coloradoan I would move to have the county commissioners condemn this roadway for a public road, pay its proprietor what it may be fairly worth and then open it to the public. Ten minutes beyond the toll gate the visitor comes to the end of the canon; an impenetrable wall of rock down which the brook leaps in a series of long, silvery cascades I have no skill in measurements and cannot give the height but a rude wooden stairway has been constructed up the face of the cliff, it numbers between two and three hundred steps, and when these are climbed the toiler is only at the top of the perpendicular rock, and has nearly as far to climb up a zigzag path made in the still steep, though not absolutely precipitous, sides of the ravine before he reaches the top. Following the narrow footpath for a few rods he comes to the grave There is no inscription, and indeed, no headstone on which an inscription can be put, simply a rude pile of stones heaped up, like an ancient burial mound, with some green vines and fresh wild flowers laid upon it It looks as though "H H" had wished to be buried away from civilization, and with no hint of civilization to mark the spot I suspect this was the case It would have been characteristic of her Far down below, the Cheyenne creek sung its song in the deep canon from which we had so laboriously climbed, far away through the trees we could discern the glistening in the sun like water, and on it, certain, the fair city of Colorado Springs as though it were an American Venice built upon the sea

I stood there with uncovered head and thought not only of her whose ashes rested beneath this burial mound, of her life, her growth her curiously commingled character, her brilliant talents, and her self-devotion to a noble cause. I recalled the school girl at my uncle's school, easily leader in the school circles there, brilliant, witty, fine ric, the woman grown, made, if ever a woman was made, to shine in society—a woman whose conversation I can characterize by no other word than coruscating, I remembered her early writings— like herself, brilliant, magnetic, full of rich color that came and went, and yet lacking some thing to make them truly great, her self-consecration to the cause of the Indian when the west hated him to the east he seemed afar off, and an object of no interest or concern the change wrought in her writing, her style, her conversation, and, as it seemed to me, though my acquaintance and our meetings but occasional in her character, a change such as is always made by a definite and noble purpose, the consecration grown deeper, the purpose more determined until her whole self was absorbed in it, until it became to her what a child is to the mother, a country to the soldier, or a church to the saint—home, patriotism, religion adding the subtle beauty of pathos to her humor the shadow of an unselfish and sympathetic sorrow to a nature not less brilliant for the change and bringing her back, at least so it seemed to me, toward that faith from which she had been repelled by her moral abhorence of cant, and her intellectual abhorrence of dogma[illegible] but in which this latter experience of self consecration had led her to sympathize with deeper insight and critical discrimination while to that last prayer she would not subscribe [illegible] the prayer of a stricken heart [illegible] for the peace of God in Trinity Church Boston Phillips Brooks may pray for it but "Unitarian will never sign as Amen" Unitarianism has a conscience to feel for the [illegible] and the oppressed

The Christian Register gives an entertaining account of the origin of the May Anniversaries which will interest all of New England breeding who were wont to go up unto that feast

The old colonial charter designated the last Wednesday in May as the time for the election of governor and other officials The votes were sent in to Boston from the various country towns Only men who were members of the church were entitled to vote a mischievous rule, because some of the very best people, who could not come up to the Puritanical standard in relating their experiences were excluded, while other sly hypocrites worked into the fold The ballots used were corn and beans A corn signified "yes," and a bean "no" These kernels, representing the suffrages of the commonwealth, were collected in each town and sent to the capital Some of these simple agricultural ballots have been preserved, and are used to this day in voting for members of the Massachusetts Horticultural society A succotash bowl of King Philip's carved out of a knot was also used to collect ballots at this society It was easy to see how a man voted, in using this instrument, as one box has been a cornucopia but a corn is still yes and a bean no," and a quarter of the votes being beans excludes a candidate

This vote, in the towns of the colony for governor as already said, was closed on the last Wednesday in May, a time in New England when the winter was really breaking up, and the roads became terrible A feature of that occasion was the preaching of the annual election sermon—a custom which was observed for the time during the administration of General Butler, in 1863 In the Puritanic system which then prevailed ministers were prominent political factors Every body, as it was called was a time of great interest to them, as well as to the laity, and generally drew them to Boston Those who lived in the back country towns had to thaw out If the minister had a horse and chaise, and the road to Boston was passable, he would generally drive his wife in with him There were usually some annual purchases to be made, often including a new cloak or gown for the woman and a new hat for the minister There were no country stores in those days

This election week very early became an occasion for a uniform gathering of Congregational ministers The last Wednesday in May and the Thursday following were the principal days, beginning with the old colonial times, and running through all the provincial governments into the state government and continuing unto the remembrance of these now living The religious interest of these gatherings became equal to the political

The Nation in an interesting article on "The Reading Habit" thus discourses on the ability to listen well "The capacity for listening well is now rarely found except among judges and lawyers, and even among the judges it is said to be falling off under the the influence of printed briefs and arguments But it has to be cultivated in order to be either attained or retained as everybody knows who only occasionally goes to hear a sermon or lecture. The untrained attention runs hither and thither like a restless child and nothing but a very determined effort of the will keeps it fixed on the words of the orator or wanders off to sleep in which again like a restless child, it is very apt to take refuge on the slightest approach of fatigue Curiously enough to the incapacity for sustained attention is one of the most marked characteristics of the savage as distinguished from the civilized man All who have had to do with the savage in any part of world testify that the greatest difficulty in communicating new ideas to him is that of getting him to listen long on any one subject. His mind is as prone to wander as that of a child"

The foregoing suggests an incidental but by no means slight intellectual advantage derivable from habitual church going The person who hears one or two sermons every Sunday undergoes a systematic discipline in the power of mental concentration The venerable ex President Hopkins of Williams in a recent address on the higher education declared its chief intellectual value to be to create this power of concentration of thought. He quoted a quaint remark of D L Moody to the effect that "he wanted young men capable of looking fifteen minutes at the point of a camel's needle without winking" It is a fact worth noting that those Christian countries in which preaching is the life account of are the countries where the average intelligence and intellectual force are lowest, while in England and America especially where there is a large amount of preaching and a general attendance upon it the intelligence and intellectual force of the people are at the maximum

The Large Man

Providence Journal

It was nine by the large clock in a Westminster street restaurant as a lame boy with a crutch and a basket containing an assortment of candy and other sweetmeats entered and jumped up to a large man who was standing at the bar imbibing with four jolly companions

"Candy," piped the lame lad

The large man turned abruptly, looked at the boy and then said;

"Is your father working?"

"No, sir," said the lad "He's dead"

"Who's going to care for all those children?" asked the basket?"

The little fellow looked at his stock and then again at the man apparently not comprehending the situation

"Have you got a mother?"

Yes, sir," was the response

"Fellows" said the large man "let's help the boy's mother," and then five huge hands went down into trousers' pockets for loose coin The collection amounting to a dollar and sixty cents was handed to the boy, who went out of the place looking at the money in the palm of his hand nearly bewildered at his good fortune, and wholly unable to account for his unusual treatment

A party of young folks spent a very pleasant evening at the home of Misses Ida and Edith Parker on Weber street last night.

Mr. Frank Asbury, advertising agent of C. Gardiner's Zozo company, which appears here next Monday night, was in the city yesterday.

A. H. Plumb and the Misses M. E. and R. Plumb, family of Senator Plumb of Kansas, are at The Antlers. They will go to Manitou to-day.

Mr. F. Le Forman, general traveling agent for the Equitable Life Assurance society, of New York, is in the city in the interest of his company.

Mr. H. M. Harbert, of the Deaf Mute Index, has returned from his visit to California. On the way back he spent a short time with friends at Montrose, Colo.

Pink-eye, a disease with which many of our Colorado Springs horses have been afflicted, is rapidly disappearing. It seems to be very prevalent over the state.

Rains are now becoming just as too frequent as they were too scarce a month ago. Two or three showers a day rather breaks up business for the livery men.

Mr. W. M. H. Busby, editor of the Chicago Inter-Ocean, who has been at the Iron Springs hotel, Manitou, for some time, called at the GAZETTE office yesterday.

Mrs. Frank Kay, whose husband is now confined in the county jail awaiting an appearance before the grand jury on a charge of burglary, visits her husband in the jail every day.

Prof. and Madame Steen are so thoroughly well pleased with this section of Colorado that they have leased a cottage at Manitou and will spend the remainder of the season there.

The sale of reserved seats for "Zozo" the Magic Queen will begin at Bell's drug store this morning. This being the opening attraction of the season they will no doubt have a large house.

The holding of a county fair in Colorado Springs this fall would bring thousands of dollars to the city that otherwise will not come. We believe that business men generally would contribute to such an enterprise.

Three ladies while attempting to ford the Monument at the mesa crossing in a phaeton narrowly escaped being drowned. They had been in the city stopping for several hours and were on their return to Manitou when the accident occurred. Between the time that they first crossed and when they started back there was a shower which raised the water in the creek several feet. Their horse and buggy were going down stream but their loud cries brought assistance.

Mr. F. M. Smith of the Chicago News Letter registered at The Antlers last evening. He will spend some time in Colorado.

It is almost a daily occurrence to see large four, six and eight mule teams on the mountain road, thus reminding one of the days when nearly all Leadville freight went through Colo pass. These teams are engaged in carting supplies to the Midland camps.

A call is out, which is being signed generally by property owners, for a meeting at the city hall next Tuesday evening to devise means of protecting the city against floods which may occur in the future. All property owners are invited to attend and advise together on the subject.

In their circular of August 2d Edward Mellor & Co., wool commission merchants of Philadelphia, say that since their circular of the 16th was issued the market has shown a very firm tone, and while choice wools of quarter and medium grades have sold in limited quantities at rather better prices than our highest figures, still on the whole quotations then given are conservative, and with one or two exceptions correct for to-day. The foreign market has advanced again on some grades during the past ten days, and while the market here has seemed to be more quiet, and manufacturers showing a hesitancy to pay ruling prices, yet the average amount of wool has been sold, and the same has only been curtailed for want of larger offerings. Manufacturers find it difficult to realize any advance on goods, but with prices keeping firm, merchants will see the only alternative to be to accept the situation and pay value asked.

Mr. C. R. Gardiner's production of the greatest of all spectaculars, "Zozo," the Magic Queen, will appear at the opera house Monday evening. Some idea may be had of the magnitude of the company when the public are informed that this is the only traveling company who carry their own special car for machinery and apparatus, to manufacture their own gas for calcium light; also a special palace car for transportation of scenery. The company is a very large one, consisting of over thirty people. One of the main features of this performance is the engagement of Miss Blanche Curtisse, a Vassar college graduate, to take the leading part in this play. Miss Curtisse has made a phenomenal success in the difficult role of "Zozo" the Magic Queen. The performance next Monday evening will no doubt prove to be the best of the kind our people have ever had an opportunity of witnessing.
